Operators Here Await Word to Go Out, and Strike Will Probably Be Complete by Monday Morning.

New York faces a strike of Western Union and Postal telegraph operators that will practically cut this city out of wire conection with the rest of the country. The otticers of the companies expect that the strike begun in Los-Angeles on Wednesday and since extended to Chicago and all the principal cities of the West, will reach New York Mon-Ipunished through his efforts.

It is estimated that there are 3,000 operators out now. The strike is spreading in the West, affecting, thus far, the big commercial centres. New York has only fragmentary wire communication with that portion of the United States lying west and south of Chicago over leased wires. On Monday the strikers expect to tie up all leased wire service.
